56A Entitlement to long service leave after 10 years

(1) If an employee has completed at least 10, but less than 15, years of continuous employment with one employer, the employee is entitled to an amount of long service leave equal to 1/60th of the period of continuous employment with that employer.

employee means a person employed by an employer to do any work for hire or reward, and includes—

(b) a casual or seasonal employee;

employer includes, in relation to a transfer referred to in section 60, a person who was not an employer at the time of the transfer.

60 Meaning of one employer

(1) This section sets out several situations in which an employee is to be regarded, for the purposes of this Division, as having been employed by the one employer, even though the employee may have worked over the relevant period of time for more than one employer in a strict legal sense.

(2) If an employee is employed by a corporation, he or she is to be regarded as having been employed by that corporation during any period that—

(a) he or she was employed by a related body corporate of that corporation (within the meaning of the Corporations Act); or

(b) he or she was employed by another corporation and—

(i) the directors of that other corporation and the employee's present employer were substantially the same; or

(ii) that other corporation and the employee's present employer were under substantially the same management.

(3) If the ownership of a business employing someone changes but the employment of the employee continues, the employee is to be regarded as having started employment with the new owner on the date on which the employee started his or her employment at that business.

(4) Subsection (3) applies regardless of whether the change occurred before or after the commencement of this Division.

(5) If an employee was dismissed from employment by the owner of a business, but the ownership of the business changes and the new owner employs the employee within 3 months after the dismissal, the employee is to be regarded as—

(a) having finished employment with the former owner on the day before the ownership of the business changed; and

(b) having started employment with the new owner on the day the ownership changed; and

(c) having been employed by the new owner from the date on which the employee first started employment at that business.

(6) If an employee performs duties in connection with any assets used in the carrying on of a business of his or her employer and those assets are transferred to another employer who continues the employment of the employee, the employee is to be regarded as having started employment with the new owner on the date on which the employee started his or her employment at that business.

(7) Subsection (8) only applies if an employee performs duties in connection with any assets used in the carrying on of a business of an employer and—

(a) the employee is dismissed by that employer; and
(b) those assets are transferred to another employer; and

(c) the other employer employs the employee within 3 months after the date of the dismissal to perform duties in relation to those assets, or other assets of a similar kind.

(8) If this subsection applies, the employee is to be regarded as—

(a) having finished employment with his or her former employer on the day before the assets were transferred; and

(b) having started employment with the new employer on the day the assets were transferred; and

(c) having been employed by the new employer from the date on which the employee first started employment at that business.

(9) Subsections (5), (6) and (8) do not apply if the transfer or change of ownership occurred before 11 October 1984.

(10) In this section—

assets includes land, plant and equipment;

business includes a trade, process or occupation and any part of a trade, process or occupation and also includes any part of a business;

transfer includes a transmission, conveyance, assignment or succession, whether by agreement or by operation of law.

61 Employer may apply to reverse the effect of section 60(5) and (8)

(1) A new owner or employer referred to in section 60(5) and (8) may apply to the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court for a declaration that one or other of those sections does not apply to the employment of an employee or of a class of employee.

(2) The Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court may make such a declaration if the employer satisfies it that the employment of the employee, or the class of employee, was not related to the change of ownership or transfer of assets (as the case may be).

(3) Section 60(5) or (8) does not apply to the employment of an employee, or of a class of employee, in respect of whom such a declaration is made.

62 Meaning of continuous employment

(1) This section sets out several situations in which an employee is to be regarded, for the purposes of this Division, as having been continuously employed even though in a strict legal sense it could be said that the employee's employment was interrupted.

(2) An employee's employment is to be regarded as being continuous despite—

   (a) the taking of any annual leave or long service leave;

   (b) any absence from work on account of illness or injury;

   (c) any other absence from work approved by his or her employer (paid or unpaid), including carer's leave but not including adoption, maternity or paternity leave;

   (ca) the taking of any period of adoption, maternity or paternity leave (paid or unpaid), not exceeding—

       (i) 12 months; or
(ii) any longer period—

(A) specified in the employee's employment agreement; or

(B) to which the employee is entitled under Division 6 of Part 7 of the Workplace Relations Act 1996 of the Commonwealth, as continued in force under the Fair Work Transition Act; or

(C) to which the employee is entitled under the National Employment Standards within the meaning of the Commonwealth Fair Work Act;

(d) any interruption or ending of the employment by the employer if the interruption or ending is made with the intention of avoiding obligations in respect of long service leave or annual leave;

(e) in the case of an employee performing duties in relation to assets of a particular kind, any absence from work arising solely because of a transfer to which section 60(6) applies of those assets from one employer to another employer;

(f) any interruption arising directly or indirectly from an industrial dispute;

(g) the dismissal of the employee, but only if he or she is re-employed within a period not exceeding 3 months after his or her dismissal;

(h) the standing-down of the employee on account of slackness of trade;
(3) If the employment of an employee who was apprenticed to an employer is continued by the employer within 12 months after the completion of the apprenticeship, the period of the apprenticeship is to be counted as part of the continuous employment of the employee with that employer.

(4) Subsection (3) applies regardless of whether the continuation occurred before or after the commencement of this Division.

(5) For the purposes of this Division, the continuous employment by an employer of an employee who is employed by the employer at the commencement of this Division is to be regarded as starting at the actual day (before the commencement of this Division) of that employment.

62A Meaning of continuous employment for casual and seasonal employees

(1) Without limiting section 62, the employment of an employee who is employed by the same employer more than once over a period is to be regarded as continuous if—
63 Whether interruptions are to be included in the period of employment

(1) The absences from work referred to in section 62(2)(a), (d) and (e) are to be counted as part of the period of an employee's employment.

(2) Any absence from work of not more than 48 weeks in any year on account of illness or injury is to be counted as part of the period of an employee's employment, but any absence for that reason in excess of that period is not to be counted.

(3) Any absence from work referred to in section 62(2)(c) is to be counted as part of the period of an employee's employment unless—

(a) there is no more than an absence of 3 months between each instance of employment in the period; or

(b) there is more than an absence of 3 months between two particular instances of employment, but the length of the absence is due to the terms of the engagement of the employee by the employer.

(2) Without limiting section 62, the employment of an employee who is employed by the same employer more than once over a period is to be regarded as continuous if the absences between instances of employment are due to the seasonal nature of the employee's employment.

(3) Subsections (1) and (2) apply even if—

(a) any of the employment is not full-time; or

(b) the employee is employed by the employer under 2 or more employment agreements; or

(c) the employee has engaged in other employment during the period.
(a) on it being approved, it was agreed in writing between the employee and the employer (at the request of the employee) that it not be counted; or

(b) it is unpaid adoption, maternity or paternity leave.

(4) The absences from work referred to in section 62(2)(f), (g) and (h) are not to be counted as part of the period of an employee's employment.

(5) In computing long service leave under this Division, any long service leave (or payment in lieu of long service leave) granted to an employee in respect of any period of employment which is under this section, or under section 61 or 62, to be taken into account in computing the employee's entitlement to long service leave under this Division is to be taken into account and regarded as having been leave taken under this Division.

64 Meaning of ordinary pay

(1) For the purposes of this Division, _ordinary pay_ means the pay an employee is entitled to receive at the time he or she takes long service leave for working his or her normal weekly hours at his or her ordinary time rate of pay.

(2) Ordinary pay includes the cash value of any board or lodging that the employee receives from his or her employer.

(3) If no ordinary time rate of pay is fixed for an employee's work under the relevant employment agreement, the employee's ordinary time rate of pay is to be taken to be the greater of the following—

(a) the average weekly rate earned by the employee in the 12 months immediately before he or she takes long service leave;
Long Service Leave Act 1992
No. 83 of 1992
Part 5—Provisions Concerning Specific Industrial Matters

(b) the average weekly rate earned by the employee in the 5 years immediately before he or she takes long service leave.

(4) If—

(a) no normal weekly number of hours of work is fixed for an employee's work under the relevant employment agreement; or

(b) the normal weekly number of hours is fixed but is changed one or more times during the 12 months immediately before the employee takes long service leave—the employee's normal weekly number of hours of work is to be taken to be the greater of the following—

(c) the average weekly number of hours worked by the employee in the 12 months immediately before he or she takes long service leave;

(d) the average weekly number of hours worked by the employee in the 5 years immediately before he or she takes long service leave.

(5) If an employee defers the taking of his or her long service leave under a written agreement with his or her employer made at the request of the employee, the ordinary time rate of pay that is to be used in calculating the employee's ordinary pay for the time he or she is on leave is to be the rate agreed on in the agreement.

(6) The rate agreed on in such an agreement must not be less than the rate to which the employee is entitled on the date the entitlement to the leave arises and any provision to the contrary in an agreement is of no effect.
(7) If an employee is—

(a) working in suitable employment (within the meaning of section 5 of the Accident Compensation Act 1985); or

(b) absent from work because of a workplace illness or injury and in receipt of any compensation in the form of weekly payments from the Authority for that illness or injury—

(c) the employee's normal weekly hours and ordinary time rate of pay immediately before he or she takes long service leave;

(d) the employee's normal weekly hours and ordinary time rate of pay immediately before he or she developed the relevant illness or suffered the relevant injury.

65 Employees to whom this Division does not apply

(1) This Division does not apply to any employee who—

(a) is entitled to long service leave under any Act other than this Act; or

(b) is in a class of employees who are entitled to long service leave under an employment agreement (regardless of whether it was made before or after the commencement of this Division) on a basis that, in the opinion of the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court, is more favourable than that provided by this Division; or
(c) is employed by an employer who is exempted under this section from complying with this Division in respect of him or her.

(2) An employer may apply to the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court to be exempted from complying with this Division in respect of all or any, or any class of, employees.

(3) The Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court may grant such an application if it is satisfied—

(a) that the employees in respect of whom the application is made are entitled under their terms and conditions of employment, on a basis no less favourable than that prescribed by this Division—

(i) to long service leave;

(ii) (whether or not solely at the cost to the employer, but at a cost to the employer that is no less than the cost involved in providing long service leave under this Division) to superannuation benefits or to superannuation benefits and long service leave; and

(b) that the entitlement better serves the interests of the employees than the entitlement provided by this Division.

(4) The Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court may grant the application subject to conditions and may at any time impose conditions or further conditions on the grant.

(5) The Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court may revoke an exemption at any time.
66 When leave is to be taken

(1) An employer and an employee who is entitled to long service leave under this Act may agree when the employee is to take the leave.

(2) In the absence of an agreement under subsection (1), the employer may direct the employee to take long service leave at a particular time by giving the employee at least 3 months' written notice.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), an employee who receives a notice from an employer under subsection (2) must take the leave as directed by the employer.

(4) The employee may apply to the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court for an order concerning the taking of long service leave—

(a) if the employee and the employer cannot agree under subsection (1); or

(b) if the employee receives a notice from the employer under subsection (2).

(5) In determining an application under subsection (4), the Court may take into account all of the relevant circumstances, including the needs of the employee and the needs of the employer's business.

67 Leave period may be split

(1) Long service leave must be taken in one period.

(2) However, if an employer and an employee agree, an employee—

(3) If the employment of an employee who has taken leave in advance ends, the employer may deduct from any payment payable to the employee as a result of the ending of his or her employment an amount equal to the amount paid to the employee for the leave (if any) in respect of which the employee will not become entitled.

In proceedings for a contravention of section 90, if the employee proves that he or she—

(a) took long service leave; or

(b) applied for long service leave; or

(c) otherwise communicated to the employer his or her intention to take long service leave—the onus of proving that the termination, threat or prejudice was not actuated by the reason alleged by the employee lies on the employer.

93 Reimbursement, reinstatement and compensation

(1) If an employer is found to have contravened section 90, the court may—

(a) order the employer to pay the employee a specified sum by way of reimbursement for the remuneration lost by the employee; and

(b) subject to subsection (2), order that the employee be reinstated in his or her former position or a similar position.

(2) If the court considers that it would be impracticable to reinstate the employee, the court may order the employer to pay the employee an amount of compensation not exceeding the amount of remuneration of the employee during the 12 months immediately before the employee's employment was terminated.

(3) An order under subsection (1)(a) or (2) must be taken to be a judgment debt due by the employer to the employee and may be enforced in the court accordingly.

Division of the Magistrates' Court

(1) If a person is charged with an offence against this Act, the charge must be heard, and all penalties recovered, before the Magistrates' Court sitting as the Industrial Division.

(2) Despite anything to the contrary in any Act, the jurisdiction of the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court in relation to any matter referred to in subsection (1) is exclusive.

(3) Nothing in this section deprives a person of any right that the person has under the Criminal Procedure Act 2009—

(a) to appeal to the County Court against any sentence imposed by the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court; or

(b) to appeal to the Supreme Court, on a

(b) may be given generally, or only in relation to a particular case or cases, or a particular class of case or cases; and

(c) may be revoked by the person who gave it at any time by notice in writing.

(3) The revocation of an authorisation does not affect any proceedings started by a person before that person's authorisation was revoked unless the notice of revocation states otherwise.

(4) In a prosecution for an offence under this Act, the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court must presume, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the prosecutor is authorised to bring the prosecution.

(5) A prosecution may only be conducted by—

(a) the person authorised to bring the prosecution; or

(c) an Australian lawyer (within the meaning of the Legal Profession Act 2004) briefed by the person authorised to bring the prosecution.
155 Judicial notice of signatures

(a) the signature of a person who is, or was at the time the signature purports to have been made, the Minister, the Chief Administrator or an officer to whom section 154(1)(c) applies; and

(b) the fact that a person listed in paragraph (a) held the position he or she purported to hold at the time the signature purports to have been made.

158 Conduct of agents imputed to corporations

For the purposes of this Act, any conduct engaged in on behalf of a corporation—

(a) by a director, employee or agent of the corporation acting within the scope of the person's actual or apparent authority; or

(b) by any other person at the direction, or with the consent (express or implied) of such a director, employee or agent—is also conduct engaged in by the corporation.
158A Conduct of corporations imputed to directors

(1) For the purposes of this Act, any conduct engaged in by a corporation (as a result of the application of section 158 or otherwise) is also conduct engaged in by an executive officer of the corporation if the executive officer knew about the conduct or was reckless as to whether it was engaged in.

(2) In this section—

executive officer of a corporation means—

(a) a director of the corporation; or

(b) any other person who is concerned, or takes part, in the management of the corporation (regardless of the person's designation).

(1) In a prosecution against an employer for failing to pay an employee an amount owed to the employee under an employment agreement if—

(a) the employee is dead; and

(b) the employer alleges that the period shown in the charge-sheet as being the period of continuous employment of the employee with the employer is wrong—the employer bears the onus of proving the allegation.

(2) In this section, employment agreement does not include—

(a) a federal agreement; or
(b) any terms and conditions of employment to which an employee is entitled under—
   (i) a federal award; or
   (ii) a federal determination.

160 Recovery of money owed

(1) An employee who is owed any money by an employer under this Act or any other Act, or under any employment agreement or order made under this Act or any other Act, may take proceedings in the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court to recover the money owing. The debt must arise out of the employment relationship.

(2) An organisation may, if requested to do so by an employee who is, or is eligible to become, a member of the organisation, take proceedings in the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court to recover money owed to the employee for long service leave.

(3) Proceedings under this section must be started within 6 years after the employee's entitlement to the money arises.

(4) Before proceedings may be started under this section, the employer must be given a written demand for the money owed.

(5) If the Court is satisfied that the employer—
   (a) had reasonable notice of the employee's claim; and
   (b) had no reasonable grounds on which to dispute the claim; and
(c) in the circumstances should have paid the claim without the need for proceedings being taken to establish the validity of the claim—the Court may order the employer to pay interest to the employee on top of any other amount that the employee is entitled to.

(6) The interest must not be greater than the rate fixed under section 2 of the Penalty Interest Rates Act 1983 that applies at the time the Court makes the order.

(7) If a claim is made under this section by an employee's personal representative, subsections (5) and (6) apply despite anything to the contrary in section 29 of the Administration and Probate Act 1958.

- organisation has the same meaning as in the Commonwealth Fair Work Act.

(1) If the Industrial Division of the Magistrates' Court finds an employer guilty of an offence relating to the underpayment of an employee, the Court may order the employer to pay the employee any amount that the employee was underpaid and that is still owed to the employee, in addition to imposing a penalty for the offence.

(3) Subsections (5), (6) and (7) of section 160 apply to this section.

(4) An order under this section may be enforced as if it were an order made by the Court in a civil proceeding. However, if any amount remains to be paid after all reasonable means of civil enforcement have been tried, the order may be enforced as if it were a fine imposed by the Court.

(5) Nothing in this section limits an employee's rights under section 160, and nothing in that section limits the power of the Court under this section.

(6) In this section—

employee includes a former employee;

employer includes a former employer.

168 Supreme Court—limitation of jurisdiction

It is the intention of this section to alter or vary section 85 of the Constitution Act 1975 to the extent necessary—
